London, Feb. 5.—King George and Queen Mary returned to England today from the most memorable journey ever undertaken together by a king and queen of Great Britain and Ireland.

After an absence of three months during which they had been crowned Emperor and Empress of India and had received the homage of many of their princely vassals in the vast eastern empire, they were given a hearty welcome back to London. Their present stay in the British Isles will be only a short one as they are due to pay a round of state visits to European courts this spring and summer.

Given Royal Greeting.

After breakfasting on board the "Medina" with Queen Mother Alexandra, the Prince of Wales and the royal children, their majesties landed and were saluted by the guns of the forts around Portsmouth. On the quay were drawn up guards of honor of blue jacks and soldiers who presented arms while a military band struck up the strains of the national anthem.

A large assembly of notables was awaiting at Victoria Station when the train pulled in soon after midday.

An arch bearing the words "Welcome Home" in gold lettering on a blue back ground was erected across the platform where their Majesties alighted.

Welcomed by Asquith.

Premier Asquith, with other members of the cabinet, was the first to greet the King and Queen. The Lord Mayor and the sheriffs of London and lords mayor of the principal cities of the British Isles, all wearing their regalia, also were present to welcome their Majesties.

When the greetings were over a procession of five royal carriages was formed. The procession proceeded to Buckingham palace, passing through Victoria street to Parliament square, and then along the Whitehall and Pall Mall through streets thronged with cheering enthusiasts.

Entered Port.

Portsmouth, Eng., Feb. 5.—King George and Queen Mary on board the "Medina" entered Portsmouth harbor this morning on their return from the Durbar, large fleet of warships and merchant vessels welcomed them. The ships were brilliantly dressed with flags for the occasion.

The only ceremony as the Medina steamed through the line was the dipping of flags. The Queen mother Alexandra, the royal children and many members of the court went on board the King's ship early in the day and took breakfast with their majesties.

The Medina in entering the harbor passed close to the spot where the British submarine "A 3" sank on Friday. The vessels in charge of salvage of her nation anchored over the sunken submarine joined in the salute to the King and Queen.

LACK OF WORK CAUSES LAYING OFF OF MANY

Business Slacking Down After City Rush and Fifteen Men Are Laid Off Last Week.

Three machinists, two bellermakers and their helpers beside a few extra men around the shop were laid off last Friday owing to the slackening of business. Fifteen men were too go in, only one out of the entire number being taken back today. Things have quieted down considerably since the rush which followed the cold spell a short time ago has gone down.

The wrecking crew spent the day in Roscoe yesterday where they put on two pairs of new trucks in place of some having broken wheels.

Timekeeper Ward reported for work this morning with a rather tired expression on his sad young face. Somebody is reported to have seen him taking the Chicago train toward Woodstock yesterday.

Fireman Wilkins was on 584 in Bunker's place last night.

Engines 337 is in the shop which is also the complaint which 1476 is being treated for. Engine 79 is also undergoing a few repairs which will take a few days.

Fireman Ashley was off last night and Fireman Matheson took his place. Engineer Spohn is off today, J. W. Lewis taking his place.

Fireman Davy is enjoying a trip to Chicago and Fireman Pleasant is in his place for a short time.

Bellermaker Shaw, Hong is back today after being off for several days. He still wears that happy smile and he and M. McDermott have been seen talking together several times lately.

All of those who expect to be working at the shops or yards next spring are taking all the accident insurance which they can hold those days as it leaked out that "Machineists" Helper Fish is planning on going into the auto delivery business at that time. He promises to come out to South Janelville every day. Considerable discussion is going on about putting up a large stone wall along the road leading to town to protect the men working on the car repair track. When things are going to slow Johnson is bound to start something.

LITERARY HUSBANDS.

Some Great Writers Who Were Very Badly Married.

Among the many unhappy marriages of great writers a rather conspicuous example is that of Edward Bulwer Lytton and Rosina Doyle Wheeler. Miss Wheeler was cultured, educated, vivacious and beautiful when she married the novelist.

But the honeymoon over, her husband took her to a lonely country house and shut her completely out of society. He insisted upon her hunting up references and copying his manuscripts. Lady Lytton's life was a long and terrible tragedy.

In course of time she became embittered against both her husband and the son, the "Owen Meredith" of literature. She survived her husband ten years and died friendless and unmourned.

A marked contrast to the gloomy life of the Lyttons is the bright and happy life of the Kingsleys. Charles Kingsley, the distinguished clergyman and author, traced his spiritual regeneration to the sustained efforts of Fanny Greenlees.

There was a long courtship of five years, and perhaps no wedded life over more thoroughly attuned to the true blessedness of the marriage bond than that of Charles and Fanny Kingsley.

Dante was married to a notorious scold, and when he was in exile, he had no desire to see his wife, although she was the mother of his six children.

Dr. Samuel Johnson's wife was old enough to be his mother, but he continued to be under the illusion of the wedding day, when he thought he had married one of the most beautiful women in the world. When she died at the age of sixty-four, he being only forty-three, he mourned her loss as irreparable.

Lord Bacon enjoyed but little domestic bliss and "loved not to be with his partner." Dryden "married discord to a noble wife." Addison sold himself to a cross grained old countess.

Shelley's first marriage was unfortunate, but his second was a model of domestic happiness. Moore was married to a wife who made him most miserable. Rousseau lived a most wretched life with his partner, Stevie, Steenie, Churchill, Coleridge, Byron and Charles Dickens have been recorded in history as "indifferent husbands."—Literary Bureau.

The Old "Smock Frock."

The "smock frock" was well known in New England villages in the early sixties. It was a plain, serviceable garment, never fancifully ornamented, at least not to our knowledge, but picturesque, and distinctive. The hired man wore it and was not ashamed thus dressed to ride in town meeting to speak against the lawyer, storekeeper, minister or rich man of the village, on a question of raising money for schools, repair of roads, or strengthening a bridge. The town meeting described and lauded by De Tocqueville was distinguished by its smock frocks. Yet even in the sixties this garment was not known to many dwellers in large towns. George M. Stearns was once defending some men accused of arson. The court was held at Northampton. A witness had testified that a suspicious person, watched by a constable, was dressed in smock frock. Mr. Stearns first queried as to the meaning of the term and then made all manner of fun of the garment. For once his marked shrewdness deserted him. The smock frock was often worn by men then on the jury.—Boston Herald.

Fireman Wilkins was on 584 in Bunker's place last night.

Engines 337 is in the shop which is also the complaint which 1476 is being treated for. Engine 79 is also undergoing a few repairs which will take a few days.

may be overdone.

Mr. Willard F. Mallon, attorney, defended the laws against Sunday breaking, indecent literature, etc.

"But these laws," objected a sociologist, "undermine our freedom." "Freedom," said Bishop Mallon, "is a good thing, but let me not make too much of it. In Pennsylvania, for instance, a man is free to marry his mother-in-law, but no man ever does."

SPORT.RAVE CHANCES FOR PLACE IN TOURNEY

Janesville Basketball Team is One of Ten in Southern Division in Running for Appleton Meet.

According to the statement received from the management of the eighth annual Wisconsin high school basketball tournament, held under the auspices of Lawrence college at Appleton, the Janesville team is one of the ten still in the running in the Southern Division.

The other teams, all of which have good records are from the high schools in the following cities in this division: Brookfield, Columbus, Jefferson, Kenosha, Madison, Portage, Racine, Superior and Waukesha.

Seventy-one high schools have entered for the eight places in the tournament and at least ten more are expected to enter at once. The race now appears, however, to be narrowed to thirty-six teams, of about half of the number entered, although it is possible for some of the teams that have a low standing now to make up for past defeats and enter the contest.

The contest is very keen in the Central division and the twelve teams entered are: Antigo, Appleton, Brillion, Fond du Lac, West Green Bay, Iola, Menasha, Maukowitz, Marshfield, Oshkosh, Oconto and Sheboygan.

Nine teams are ranking high in the Western section and four teams are entered in the Northern division.

Human Hair Lace.

Lace made from human hair is not manufactured in the Prague consular district, but probably will be before long. The lace is made in strips and the hair is held in place by a solution of wax; otherwise the lace would unravel. The article is made by hand, and the pattern resembles the cells in a honeycomb on a very small scale. It is used in the manufacture of wigs made from human hair, but is used only where the hair is part of the wig. When strips of human hair lace are used it is very difficult to distinguish a well-made wig from the natural hair. The wigs are fastened to the scalp by means of small pieces of adhesive plaster, which are removed at night. Well-made wigs sell here for $14 and slightly higher prices.

FIRST PRODUCTION IS GIVEN TONIGHTAdelaide Dalton Stock Company Opens Long Run at Myers Theatre This Evening.

The new stock company which is to open for a permanent engagement of ten or twenty weeks at the Myers theatre Monday evening has been hearing here every day last week.

Mrs. Adelaide Dalton is a young, beautiful and wonderfully clever leading lady who has won for herself in Chicago and elsewhere an enviable reputation as an actress. She has been the star for the following stock companies in the city of Chicago: The Peoples, Calumet, Alhambra and Marlow and her experience in stage work has been lifelong. Her father was E. R. Dalton a famous tragedian of his time. Miss Dalton will wear some exquisite and costly gowns during her performances.

Mr. Hal Briggs the leading man of the company is a young actor of recognized ability and has been connected with some of the best stock companies in this country. For the last five years he has been playing with stock companies in Chicago and is a great favorite there. He has made a remarkable record for a young man as a stage director and in all of the plays will be produced under his personal direction they will be complete and finished in every detail.

The villain of the company is to be Author Mathews a clever and charming gentleman off the stage, but one of the best "heavy men" in the business. He comes here direct from the Baker Stock Company, in Portland, Oregon, and before that played with Lewis Morrison, Porter J. White, Paul Gilmore and others.

Mrs. Francis, the ingenue of the company, is a pretty young girl, who comes highly recommended as a comedienne with a charming personality and a beautiful operatic singing voice. She will sing a beautiful selection in the opening play.

Mrs. Nellie Holland, the character woman, has been playing in stock and road shows for years and has been a great favorite everywhere.

The comedian, Mr. James H. Croy, has featured last season with the Red Mill on the road and is a "funny man" of the higher order. He will play all of the principal comedy parts, and should prove a strong drawing card for the company.

The other members were all selected with care by Mr. Briggs, for Miss Dalton from among the numerous people who have worked with him in the past.

The plays to be presented will all be of the better class of drama and comedy of today, and will be played under their correct titles, so that the theatre goers may be sure of what they are going to see, and all of the scenery and electrical effects will be used as in the original productions.

The opening performance will be given this evening and a crowded house is assured.

The opening play, "Follies," or "Mother and Son" gives every member of the company an opportunity to prove their ability and will be continued for the first three nights of this week, with a special Wednesday matinee for those who cannot come to the night performances.

Elephants Asleep.

A question often raised in regard to the African elephant is whether these animals ever rest or not, says writer in Country Life. At first blush it would appear that there could only be one answer to the question. So huge an animal must expend a terrible amount of energy and therefore as one might reasonably infer must need more than smaller animals for rest and reinvigoration. Nevertheless, many travellers and some naturalists have asserted that the African elephant in its native state never sleeps or at least never lies down. A correspondent who has sent photographs direct from Malek on the White Nile says in the communication that accompanies them that the pictures represent "a herd of female elephants photographed in the bush near Malek, in the Mogalla province of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. It has been maintained that the African elephant never lies down to rest. Several may be seen thus sleeping."

IN GRAVE DANGER FROM BLOOD POISONMRS. IDA SCHRIVER, RECOVERING FROM DREADED DISEASE, UNDER UNITED DOCTORS' TREATMENT.

Blood poisoning is without doubt one of the most dreaded of all diseases regardless in what form it may be. The quick or gradual effects of blood poison makes the bravest recall from its effects. Each person afflicted with a disease or ailment lives in hope that someone, somehow, sometime, will be able to cure them—but too often as in Mrs. Schrivers case ordinary doctors fail to accomplish results and this hope of a cure lingers until the sick person is beyond seeing the ray of light ahead—which to them means—"Death."

Mrs. Schrivers had almost this experience, but having heard of the remarkable cures made by the United Doctors who have their Janesville Institute in the Hayes Block, corner of Milwaukee and Main streets, decided to call upon these specialists with their new system of treatment as a last chance. Mrs. Schrivers lived at 617 E. Main St. Streator, Ill., and is known for her integrity so, the below part of a lengthy statement made by her for publication will prove of great interest to her friends and the sick who have been and are discouraged of ever being well again. The below is part of Mrs. Schrivers statement:

Streator, Ill., Feb. 20, 1911.

"I wish to make a statement as to the wonderful results that I received in a remarkably short space of time by the United Doctors who have their Janesville Institute in the Hayes Block.

"The United system of medicine really did wonders for me for with the first bottle I felt entirely different and the second week's treatment made me so well I was able to do a good day's work and feel that I am getting stronger each day. I never expected such relief and especially in such a short space of time. The United Doctors system is wonderful."

Signed, MRS. IDA SCHRIVER.

617 E. Main St.

The above testimonial is but one of the thousands that have been received by the United Doctors in their different Institutes and tells local people just what is being done by this system of medicine all over the country."

FUNERAL FOR EARLY EDGERTON RESIDENTMrs. J. D. Hahn, Who Came to Edgerton in 1856, Passed Away Friday—Funeral Was Held Yesterday.

Edgerton, Feb. 5.—The funeral of the late Mrs. J. D. Hahn, who died on Friday night, shortly after ten o'clock, was held this afternoon at two o'clock at the Congregational church, conducted by her pastor, the Rev. F. W. Schoenfeld.

Catharine Koenig was born in Reading, Pa., March 18, 1828. In 1848 she was united in marriage to J. D. Hahn. In 1855 the family came here and bought a farm just southwest of the city, in Fulton township. In 1876 the family became residents of this city. Mr. Hahn purchasing a brick business street. In 1893 the husband passed away.

The opening play, "Follies," or "Mother and Son" gives every member of the company an opportunity to prove their ability and will be continued for the first three nights of this week, with a special Wednesday matinee for those who cannot come to the night performances.

Considerable Halibut.

A halibut caught recently in Thurso, measured seven and one-half feet long and over three feet broad, and weighed over two hundred and fifty pounds.

It was far the biggest fish caught off the north of Scotland for many years, and was sold for over £4.

The Philosopher of Folly.

"There came a time in my life," admits the Philosopher of Folly, "when I did not know which way to turn, or what step to take next. A word from my dancing master put me right, however."

Early Days of Railroading.

When the first passenger train in England took its trial trip along the tracks of the Stockton & Darlington railway in 1825, a horseman, bearing a red danger flag, galloped along just ahead of the engine to warn the crowds of spectators, and to act as part of what was intended as a railway pageant.

Education.

"The educational system which seeks to develop the mind into a money-making machine is a mischievous system; but the system which crowds the mind with unrelated facts and turns out youths who can barely earn a living is scarcely less mischievous."—T. Sharper Knowlson.

PEACE AND WAR.

In this day and age of discussion relative to a world peace, general disarmament of nations and settling down to more businesslike methods.

The plans to abandon certain navy yards and military posts and concentrate the forces of our navy and army into more restricted quarters, it is interesting to note that attitude of Secretary Meyer of the navy department and his plan for more warships.

Over in England a furor has been created by the statement of a former head of the navy that England and its boasted Dreadnaughts are “bluff” and that the naval department has made much of its initial venture in this line of fighting ships only to give other nations the benefit of the experience that they might do better and have results more adequate for the money expended.

Navies are of course necessary and expensive but inevitable if a country is to maintain its own position. An exchange, in commenting upon this situation, says:

“To be the factor it by every right should be in world affairs this nation must be able to present the one claim that commands universal recognition and respect at this time. It may do this without conceding to this claim the force, moral or physical, that is given it elsewhere. It can do so simply as a concession to the demands of the times; and its position will be in no way weakened if it shall appear armed and armored under protest.

“As the American secretary of the navy says, no nation can at this time exert its proper political influence among the nations of the world without a strong navy in proportion to its wealth and the commercial interests of its population.” If the United States is to exert an influence for good in the councils of the nations, if it is to be the great moral force it ought to be in behalf of universal tranquility, trutlity and progress, it must appear in those councils as an equal not an inferior, even if it must tolerate for the present the imposition upon it of terms to which it cannot give approval.

“All this may be said while holding to the position that the United States should not be led by vanity or arrogance to indulge itself in military or naval extravagances. Only a false sense of the nation's relationship with other peoples, only a false sense of national pride and only a perverted sense of national opportunity and responsibility could induce the American people to encourage and make provi-tion for a naval display merely as a means of impressing the world with their wealth and strength. The thought behind the sympathy that will be extended to Secretary Meyer in his present contention that this nation, by maintaining the navy at the highest standard of efficiency, may inhibit the coming of the time when navies will not be necessary.”

AMBITION CITIES.

Every so often we read of some of the larger cities of the United States shelling against paying enormous state taxes and having laws enacted by the state legislatures that they consider injurious to their own vital interests. Then those cities propose to divorce themselves from the rural part of the state and form a new state of their own. Kansas City has had its dream, Cleveage has also imagined

it could rule itself much better if it was in state of its own, and now

New York wants to try the experimen-tum and with Long Island form the state of Manhattan. This desire for self-government comes to many large communities from the egoism that unless carefully guarded against, will obtain a strong hold on any large community. Way back in the history of the world we find the cities and towns have looked down upon the surrounding country that has brought them to more or less antagonism with their near neighbors. The disposition is to day for the city residents to hold their heads much higher than their rural

A Frenchman's Recipe For An Ideal Life

CLEVER Frenchman who sighed for completeness of experience said his ideal of life would be to be woman until thirty, a soldier until fifty, and a monk for the rest of his life.

It is rather a good recipe for an interesting life, isn't it? But, what, after all, do the lives of the individuals he specifies stand for? And why can't one live such life without actually being the three different persons?

Does not the woman stand for romance, the soldier for action, the monk for meditation? Why cannot these three things be woven into life to lend their mystery and adventure and spirituality to make it fascinating and beautiful?

What is woman's outlook upon life until she is thirty, that is the woman of this Frenchman's day, for he was of a hundred years or more ago? Was it not romance and love and all the mystery and fascination of these unknown elements of life? The French girl entering womanhood peers into an utterly unknown region, all the more mysterious and fascinating because it is to her so totally new and strange. And romantic love is contemplation is delightful. And so the first years of a romantic girl's life are one of those untried delights that tantalize the tongue in anticipation, and are never recovered when once gone. By thirty, the actual beginning to show its head, disillusionment comes. And then, the man would be of to enjoy the life of the soldier.

He has gone by the age of illusion, of beautiful dreams. And he does not wish to live in the age of disillusion, so he chooses action, adventure now seems, new faces, something to do that stirs the blood.

And when the novelty of this wears off, he turns to the life of the monk,—reflection, meditation that is really sincere, the doing of good to others. This, he believes, will complete life happily.

But why should we look upon a life of this sort as purely ideal? Why can't we incorporate the thought back of it into our real life?

Why can't we have dreams and romance in life and why need these be illusory? Some will say that they, by their very nature, are illusory but there is such a thing as a practical idealist. Dreams do come true and romance can stay, if we do not let the stern realities of life crowd out the finer things of the spirit.

We can throw ourselves heart and soul into some active work. There is plenty in this world to do other than soldiering. And there is always adventure in any work, if we have the spirit of adventure within to see it.

And why wait until old age for the joy of reflection and meditation and the good deeds of the monk? A little of this in our daily life will gladden and brighten it. It is really the keynote of living, a keynote that tames the whole of life to joy. For in meditation and reflection, we come near to the great spirit that broods over the universe. We catch glimpses of the why of things, of the beauty and order and joy that is at the heart of it all. And this knowledge makes life worth living.

So let's take the old Frenchman's recipe, and not look upon it as an ideal impossible of accomplishment; but, whether we be man or woman, weave the thought in it into the warp and woof of our life to brighten and make it beautiful.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

A SENTENCE uttered by a woman who has made a great success as an interior decorator has impressed me much. It was this: "We not only try to furnish with taste, but we try to fit the room to the person who is to occupy it, and make it a characteristic and desirable setting for the personality of the owner."

How many rooms one enters, in which it is evident that no such effort to embody the individuality of the occupant in the furnishings of the room, has been made.

Little after touches, such as the presence of magazines or music, the lavish distribution of embroideries, the nature of the rows of books, on the bookshelves, may suggest and depict to us, the character of the persons who inhabit the room, but in the actual furnishings themselves, there is frequently no relation to those persons. Mission was in style when this room was furnished, and so the room consists of so many set pieces of mission, Chippendale walnut was all the rage when that couple married, and therefore, their slender purse had to be stretched to purchase a few inferior and tasteless pieces of the reigning wood.

The woman who blindly follows the dictates of fashion in gowning herself, with a complete indifference as to whether the particular style is becoming or not, is quite generally censured. I believe that the woman who furnishes her home—for it usually is the woman who has the most time, the most interest and hence the deciding voice in this matter—with like devotion to fashion and indifference to individuality, is equally at fault.

There are becoming rooms as well as becoming gowns. A successful living room is an appropriate setting for the people who inhabit it. I refer especially to the living room, because that is the center of the home—the room in which the largest proportion of its inhabitant's waking time is apt to be spent, and the room where there is most opportunity for individuality. The furnishings of a dining-room, a bed room, a kitchen, must be, to a certain extent, conventional, and must contain certain stated articles of furniture, but there are absolutely no particular appointments which have to appear in a living room.

Now, very few of us can afford to employ interior decorators, but we can employ taste and individuality in furnishing our homes. We can choose the color or colors which are to prevail in our rooms with reference to ourselves. Everyone, I believe, has a color which peculiarly belongs to him.

Again, we can choose the style of furnishings just as carefully. Don't subscribe to mission, just because mission is the rage. Mission is just as unbecoming to certain people as tailored shirtwaists and stiff collars. Don't get mahogany just because mahogany is expensive. The exquisite graining and coloring of golden oak might be thought more beautiful than mahogany, if it had chance to be more costly. Don't buy an oblong table and a divan, just because these are the style. If in your heart you really like a round table, and a couch better. Remember, that styles will come and styles will go during the years you will probably live with that furniture.

Don't stock up with old fashioned furniture, just because you know that is considered artistic. There are people to whom old fashioned furniture naturally belongs, and people to whom it does not, just as there are girls who look charming in quaint flowered muslins and flannels and other old time styles, and other girls on whom such styles look incongruous and irrelevant.

Don't try to get everything at once and lower your standard of quality in order to encompass quantity. Have the essentials just as you want them, and be willing to wait for the filling. Far better that your home should be a bit bare at first, than that it should be well stocked with cheap and meaningless furniture.

Don't try to furnish a home in a week, a month, or a year. Home building—I don't mean house building—should be the dream and labor of a lifetime. I wish our girls might be taught the technique of home furnishing in the public schools, and from then on might each plan and dream about her home until the time to make the dream a reality should come.

Some of the homes, of course, would never materialize. But think of the benefit accruing to those which really did come true. And surely no beautiful dreaming can ever be a loss even if the reality never follows the dream.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

New Pie Plates—Some Old and Odd Fillings for Pastry.

By Alice E. Whitaker.

A new kind of pie plate is worth buying if it can be kept for its own purpose and not be used as a strainer. The plate is closely wire gauged like a strainer and has a heavy rim. There can be no excuse for buying a "blond bake" with this sort of plate. Next in choice is the perforated tin plate. The blue edged earthen plate has gone entirely out of use, much to the improvement of pie, in general.

A pie put together with the greatest care may be spoiled by the filling running out at the edges especially an apple, peach or berry pie. Opinions vary as to the best way to prevent this but there is no need of binding the edges with strips of cloth moistened in cold water nor of folding the top crust under to make a thick ridge. Put a rim of pastry round the edge between the two crusts so the plate is shallow and for all the juice pie cut a round hole in the center and put in a little cone of writing paper. As the juices flow they will tend to rise upward through the paper rather than force a way through the raw paste.

For those who like mince pie but do not want to eat meat this old recipe for mock mince pies may please: Mix one cup of rolled crackers, one cup of sugar, one cup of molasses, three-quarters cup of vinegar, one cup of water, the juice of one lemon and a little of the grated yellow rind, one-third cup of butter, one level teaspoon each of salt and cinnamon, one-half level teaspoon of grated nutmeg and one cup of seeded and chopped raisins. When well blended, stir in two well beaten eggs. Bake in three pies with two crusts.

For a cracker pie roll two crackers fine, add one cup of boiling water, seven-eighths cup of sugar, the juice and grated rind of one lemon and butter between two crusts in a quick oven.

A molasses pie is made after a very old recipe. Stir a rounding tablespoon of flour into a cup of molasses; cut a lemon into slices, take out the seeds and chop fine. Mix with the molasses and pour into a pie lined plate. Put on an upper crust and bake in a hot oven.

A Kentucky apple pie is a pleasant variation. Steam half a dozen large sour apples until tender and press through a colander or coarse wire strainer, then cool. Beat the yolks of three eggs, the grated yellow rind and the juice of lemon and one cup of sugar together; beat into the apples and turn all into a pie lined plate. Dot with a few drops of oil and cover with a meringue; set back into the oven to brown. Or make a lattice of strips of paste over the top before baking and omit the meringue.

A date-and-apple pie requires one cup of dates washed, stoned and cut in small pieces. Add one cup of shaved, sifted and sweetened apples, a rounding teaspoon of butter and a few gratings of nutmeg and bake between two crusts.

An imitation cherry pie is another oddity in pie filling. For two pies mix one cup of raisins seeded and chopped fine with two cups of chopped cranberries. Add one cup of sugar mixed with a rounding teaspoon of flour and one cup of cold water. Bake between two crusts.

EASY DESSERTS.

Custards, when eggs are reasonable, are one of the easiest and most wholesome of desserts and an ideal one for children who have to carry their lunches to school. They may be either baked or steamed in cups.

Rice Custard.—Take two cups of good rich milk, add a half cup of cold cooked rice. Beat the yolks of two eggs, add six tablespoonsfuls of sugar and a pinch of salt, add this to the rice mixture and cook like a soft custard. Take from the fire and add the beaten whites of the eggs and vanilla to flavor, serve cold in cups, with or without cream.

Floating Island.—Scald a pint of rich milk, add a half cup of granulated sugar and the beaten yolks of two eggs, cook until smooth, and when cool add a teaspoonful of vanilla. Cook the whites beaten stiff and sweetened with two tablespoonsfuls of powdered sugar, by dropping in spoonfuls on to boiling water. Arrange the islands on the custard and put a cube of jelly on each.

Prune Pie.—This is an exceptionally good pie. Wash one and a half pounds of prunes and soak over night in water to cover. Cook in the same water and remove the stones, cut prunes in quarters and add a half cup of sugar, a tablespoonful of lemon juice and a few grains of salt. Reduce the juice to one and a half tablespoonsfuls. Line a pie plate with crust and dredge with flour, cover with the prunes, dot with butter, put on the upper crust and bake in a hot oven. Baked or boiled custard may be made more elaborate by the addition of coconut for flavor or chocolate, grated, may be added, if one cares for that combination.

—A. Old Maine Bear Trap.

T. B. Bates of Oakland has a bear trap made by a Lubee blacksmith in 1757 to catch bears. The present owner has also used it for this purpose. The trap has two large springs, one on each side of the jaws; on one of the jaws are five large teeth and on the other side six. The jaws have an opening of 12 by 11 inches.—Lewiston.

The White Mavis.

A white mavis has been seen in the woods at Glen Tower, Dunoon. This albinos stranger is looked at askance by the other birds, who hop round it at a safe distance, as if he were a dangerous foreigner to be avoided.

New York City.—Not all women can narrow band of velvet ribbon which stand the rather trying pleated frill at either front or back, according to the wearer's fancy. The frill is made of wide and narrow braid, moreover, is not set at the edge of a sash, but is made of wide and narrow braid, very slightly into the ribbon up closely about the throat under a cravat.

BOYCOTT A LL BUTTER

New York City.—Mrs Julian Heath of this city as president of the Housewives' League has asked the 30,000 members of her league to let no butter pass their lips for at least thirty days until the dealers cut their present high prices. First class table butter has been forced up to 53 cents a pound during the last thirty days. A similar boycott has been started in Pittsburgh and it is aimed to make their butter cry "abstain from butter and bring down inflated prices" nation wide.

Too Joyous. A grocer in Charlotte, Mich., put a can of beans in his window and offered a pair of roller skates to the one who could guess the exact number. A lad named Willis Hines hit it exactly and got the skates, but he felt so elated over his good luck that he fell dead on his way home. The doctor said it was a case of being too joyous. If the boy had got a licking instead of the skates he would have lived on.

VELVET AND ERINE SKATING COSTUME.

This effective frock was built in Paris for a young woman planning a visit to St. Moritz during the carnival season. The frock is intended for outdoor wear—especially for skating—and under the narrow tunic, which is slashed at back and front, and edged with a tiny line of ermine, is a skirt laid in flathy pleated pleats which give ample foot-room. White velvet was used for this frock, the tunic being of black velvet. Ermine fur and a white cord and tassel trimming emphasize the color contrast.

Nature Anticipates Art.

Thought for Today

by MRS. ROBERT M. LAPOLLETT.

THE UNEASY WOMAN.

THE typical uneasy woman regards man as a tyrant, cutting her off from education, freedom of speech, and the ballot, says Miss Tarbell in the January American. She cites a "List of Grievances" adopted sixty years ago by the rebels of a revolt which she says has gone on ever since.

Whatever "Declaration of Sentiment" the early pioneers may have made in their hard struggle for a cause, Miss Tarbell is surely wrong in assuming that the women of today, who believe in education, freedom of speech and the ballot, are in revolt against the tyranny of men. The tyranny of woman is the greatest obstacle to the progress of women. Good women, with good homes, good husband, good children, good social position, are naturally easy and contented with what. Miss Tarbell calls the "Business of Being a Woman;" enjoying all the opportunities and blessings of life, they see no cause of uneasiness.

These good women are like those good men with big bank accounts, large incomes, who, so long as they are not squeezed or frozen out by wrongful monopoly, are perfectly satisfied with conditions as they are, and insist there is no cause for discontent, and that agitation hinders business. Let Rockefeller attend to the business of being a Rockefeller and let the laborer attend to the business of being a laborer to all the men on Easy Street ask. They have no grievances.

The Woman Movement is led largely by women who might live easy lives, who are not uneasy for themselves, but who are uneasy for the less fortunate, not only less fortunate women, but less fortunate children, for unfortunate society which needs the co-operation of enlightened, experienced womanhood in its upward struggle. It is the most encouraging promise that exists today of a better democracy.

INFANT MORTALITY.

At the recent International congress for the consideration of means for lessening infant mortality, Hon. Nathan Straus, the New York philanthropist, said that nearly half of the infants that die in America are the victims of improper feeding. If it is considered that resistance to disease, in infants as in adults, is dependent primarily upon proper nutrition, in which food is fundamental, the percentage of infantile deaths resulting from other causes than improper feeding, is seen to be comparatively small. If half the effort spent on so-called scientific cooking instruction were devoted to teaching the art of feeding adults and infants naturally the results would be infinitely better.

Duck's Immunity to Snake Poison. Experimented by M.M. Billard and Maublant, recorded in the "Compte Rendu" of the "Biological Society" of Paris, shows that the common duck exhibits a remarkable indifference to the venom of the viper. Simplicity of Hair Dressing Now Fashionable Women Favor Parted Locks, Puffs, Pompadours, Coronet Braids Going Out.

The present fashion of wearing the hair softly parted, without puffs and braids demands a naturally fine head of hair, and women with thin, faded locks are at their wits' end to know how to make their hair look well. The first step toward this end is to keep hair and scalp in a healthy condition by this systematic use of a stimulating tonic.

HAIR'S HAIR HEALTH! contains all the health-giving ingredients needed by the starved hair roots. It destroys dandruff germs and encourages rapid growth of strong, new hair. Those hopelessly dry, faded looking locks grow soft, lustrous and youthful and the whole appearance is improved. It's Me for Olive Tablets!

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and Calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid liver.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated tablets.

They cause the bowels and liver to act normal. They never force them to unnatural action.

It is easy to compel bowel and liver activity for a time with calomel and castor, astringent, griping castor oil, but the after effects are dangerous, and the real cause of the trouble is often not even touched.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are so easy to take that children do not regard them as "medicine" at all.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Olive Tablets at bedtime. They're perfectly harmless.

Thousands take one every night just to keep right. Try them.

ETERNAL VALUES IN
REALM OF INVISIBLEWORK OF CHRIST AND CHURCH PRINCIPALLY IN THE WORLD OF THE UNSEEN.

SEE THINGS TEMPORAL

Dr. J. W. Laughlin, Pastor of Presbyterian Church, Delivers Able Sermon on "Things Worth While."

"For the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal."

Taking this passage, found in the eighteenth verse of the fourth chapter of II. Corinthians, as his text, the Rev. J. W. Laughlin, pastor of the Presbyterian church, last night delivered before a Union service of four churches, a very thoughtful and well presented sermon on the subject of "Things Worth While."

"It is a good thing, now and then," began the pastor, "to review the things for which the church stands, the great truths and principles upon which it is built and upon which it must continue to stand if it is to endure. We are prone to forget the invisible world in the continual dwelling of our thoughts on the temporal, of men and money, of place and preferment, and that there is a great and boundless universe not to be seen, or touched, or grasped, or perceived by any one of the senses."

"Consider for a moment the locomotive, huge, powerful, impressive in size and might. Back of that lies something far greater, the mind that conceived it, and the mind that directs it. We do not see the mind, we cannot lay our hand upon it, but we know that it exists and is as real as the mass of ingeniously formed matter that it has brought forth."

"The picture comes back to me of a winter scene in front of a great clothing store. The proprietors had agreed to give a suit of clothes free to every poor boy who presented himself on a certain day. I see the crowd of them as they stand at the door, their faces blue with the cold, toes protruding from their shoes, arms out at the elbows and clad in rage and tatters. Word comes that but one boy in a family can be provided with a suit. Two brothers stand at the door. The older, with difficulty restraining his tears and disappointment turns to the younger:

"Take the suit, Arlie, I am older and tougher than you."

"We can't see the sympathy and can't see the love, but we know that they are there and that they are real."

"Jesus lived in the realm of the unseen: the realm of sympathy, love, truth and righteousness. But He was not a mythical, ethereal and ephemeral figure, but a real man who lived in such a way as to apply His principles and enable others to apply them to their lives."

"It is the business of the church to teach the principles taught by Jesus, to perpetuate their teaching and observe.

"You say it is the business of the church to convert people to Christ. So it is. God gave us in Christ a living embodiment of the principles and truths which He taught, and when people are converted to Him they accept these teachings and try to conform their lives to them."

"Jesus began His mission with quiet heart-to-heart talks to a very few people about 'The Kingdom.' He first told them: 'My Kingdom is at hand.' Later He said: 'My Kingdom is not of this world.' 'Pray Thy Kingdom come!' 'My Kingdom cometh not with observation: 'The Kingdom of God is within you.'

"In this familiar way He led them from their hope of a temporal, earthly kingdom, to faith in a higher, a grander and an eternally enduring invisible Kingdom.

"The greatest thing conceivable to the minds of those simple peasants was a king, and they knew that the sphere of His influence was His Kingdom. By making their idea of what was the greatest and grandest and gradually moulding it and turning it into more subtle channels, He made them His adherents and devoted followers. He told them that His Kingdom should be inhabited by the peacemakers, by the poor in spirit, by the humble, by those who hunger and thirst after righteousness. When asked how one must enter into His Kingdom, He said, 'Let him deny himself and take up My cross and follow Me,' and also promised abiding support to all who chose to follow Him.

"Follow Him is simple, save and natural. It does not consist of ritual, of dogma, of sacrifices upon an altar. Jesus taught that it was to partake of the attributes of God—purity, love, righteousness, sympathy. Not to see that it is the mission of the church to teach these principles, is to miss its purpose. Failure to follow them accounts for all defects in church membership.

"It is not the business of the church to solve the problem of capital and labor, or to banish the saloon, or to go into politics. Its business is to so inspire men with the spirit of Christ that they will attack these problems and solve them.

"Failure to understand and comprehend the principles behind man and movements accounts for some of the greatest betrayals and crimes in history. Had Benedict Arnold grasped the idea of American independence held by the patriots of his day, he would never have committed treason. Had Judas comprehended the mission of Christ he would not have betrayed his master.

"Christianity is extensive and intensive; extensive in that it applies to all countries and all races, and to each and every individual. When accepted and applied it produces high ideals, noble impulses and a host of other virtues. Take away from men justice, truth, love, the sense of God, and you have pagans of the lowest type.

"Christianity is intensive, teaching thoroughness and perfection in virtue. It is the work of the church to deepen impressions of what is right and true, to make character, manhood and womanhood. Christians are directed to grow in grace, to add unto faith, virtue.

"There's a Reason."

murder of a young girl, his face haggard, his eyes bulging from their sockets, his mind in the depths of hell torture.

"Is money worth while at the cost of virtue?" inquire of Marie, of the late Walsh, of the score of uncharitable relatives to trust, whose names are familiar in our ears.

"Is political preference worth while, at the sacrifice of righteousness? Ask those whose ambition and lust for power has brought upon them disgrace.

"The longer we live the more will we be convinced that there is nothing so well worth while as that which may have the confidence that he is a resident of the Kingdom of God and a humble follower of the Master."

EXPLAINS REASONS FOR RATE CHANGES

—ooo—

F. P. Starr Submits Article Regarding Action Taken at Woodmen's National Convention

Knowing that the Woodmen of the local camp would be interested in an article on the reasons for the change in the insurance rates of the order, F. P. Starr, who was one of the delegates to the national convention, has submitted an article on the matter. The entire question will receive further discussion at the regular meeting of the order which will be held Feb. 12. Mr. Starr writes as follows:

"Some of the Modern Woodmen members are criticizing the revised rates of the order. To those it would kindly suggest that before giving vent to hasty criticism it would be well to study carefully not only the rates but the reasons for revising the rates.

"Permit me to state several of the reasons for revising: First, the 'Mobile Law' which has been passed in a large number of states in which the Woodmen are doing business, requires a valuation to be made of each fraternal insurance society on the 21st day of December 1912. The old rates of the Woodmen were found by competent actuaries to be deficient, and hence the change in rates to comply with the law in those states or stop doing business in the same.

"Second, in order to pay one hundred cents on the dollar on every insurance certificate issued, it was necessary to revise the rates.

"Third, the Woodmen have profited by the existence of the A. O. U. W. and other orders and have revised before it was too late.

"Hence in adding that the tables are based on the mortality record of the order for the last twenty-five years, the lowest shown by any society and adopted by the United States census bureau as a standard.

"The new rates furnish cheaper insurance on a level while the plan or any other plan can be obtained elsewhere on an adequate basis.

"Permit me to state in conclusion that while Dr. J. V. Stevens and myself were members of committees in charge of the Woodmen of the World in Chicago we had no vote in regard to the revision of rates."

Hoping Against Hope.

Lord Londonderry tells a tale which conveys its own moral about an Irishman in his employ. "Twas on the everlasting subject of Ireland's wrongs. "We'll not get home rule for old Ireland," said this son of Erin, "till Germany, France, Russia and America give them playguards of Englishmen good bating." After a pause he added proudly: "And, boker, 't whole lot of 'em shoved together couldn't do it! Oh, it's the grand navy we've got!"—M. A. P.

Getting a "Lift."

Patience—I see the girls now operate the elevators in Milwaukee, being duly licensed to do the work by the city inspector.

Patrice—As the English suffragette would say, "It's time the girls got a lift."

Natural Prophecy.

"What is the best way to make a play a howling success?"

"I suppose, to try it on the dog."

A COME-DOWN.

What splendid ideas youth has! And how hard knocks dislodge 'em! I used to want to meet my bills, But now just want to dodge 'em. Find a creditor.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

THE CONSTABLE.

By Howard L. Rahn.

It is high time that current literature shed its need of praise upon that intrepid and underpaid officer, the constable. This individual goes through life in a modest and unobtrusive manner, protecting society from the ravages of the moody cow, and arresting the predatory canine, but where do we read any poetry about him? Who ever saw a village constable with a Carnegie medal pinned coolly over his left limb? Who ever heard of a constable receiving a vote of thanks for leading an expostulatory tramp out of the city limits with a defiant men and a pair of storm boots? Where is there any record in history of a pink tea with the constable as the guest of honor? And yet the office was formerly one of great distinction. Constables were very numerous during the French revolution. It being their business to clog up the Bastille with crowned heads and remnants of royalty who had fallen into the habit of running over the populace in touring cars with non-shedding tires. Of late years however, the demand for constables has fallen off and their duties consist in keeping the books at the dog pound and winding the town clock. The constable goes armed to the teeth with line cut and several blank chattel mortgages, which he ornaments with a stub pen and the latest designs in reformed spelling. Girens day is a trying time for the constable, for he is expected to protect the aged rubes from the wiles of the threshing man and hunt the short-change artist in his shadowy lair. The constable is usually clad in glittering valument, consisting of a chattering billy and a twinkling star. It is a sad period in the life of a dog when he bites the village police force in the ruff of the leg, and this affords one of the few instances where the constable kills anything but time.

WHANG BAXTER says this life is but an ocean, by tempests swept, wherein our frail bark sails, until it's wrecked by all the dire commotion, and we are cast among the sharks and whales. He also says this life is but a valley, beset with gins, with pitfalls and with snare; woes are so thick

IT SEEMS we simply can't keep STRANGE tally, misfortunes come, and some we unaware. Whang Baxter says that life is mostly trouble, a journey drear, that soon will end, to trust; all earthly joys are but a transient bubble at which we grasp, and then the blamed thing bursts. In dolorous style Whang Baxter works his jawbones denouncing life, but when old Whang falls sick, he molts the wicks a-sending for the sawbones; they can't produce their dope a bit too quick. The world is good through which we folks are wending, even though it has its pitfalls, snares and glories; they make me tired who always are contending that we must die before the fun begins.

ON THE ROAD TO RENO.

BILL—I see that Nevada has only seventeen-tenths of a man to the square mile.

JILL—And yet when a woman wants to get a new man that's where she generally goes to get him.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Gazette, Jan. 5, 1872.—A couple of chinks of the Portage Curling Club played the Poynette curlers a week ago. The game, resulted in a tie.

Mark Petrie, of Walworth, has lost three valuable horses recently. Little Grant was valued at $2,000; also Rouen, valued at $4,000; and a colt, valued at $500.

New York.—Special Mexican dispatches say that Juarez has hung all officers, including the leader of the revolutionary forces, captured at Ft. Gorgobon, thirty miles from Monterrey.

One hundred and fifty-eight cases of small pox were reported in Milwaukee during the month of December, sixty-three of which were fatal. In January there were one hundred and fifty-six cases and fifty-six deaths.

A class of Beloit college students visited Janesville on Saturday night—came over to get a square meal at the Myers house.

The First M. E. church sociable will be held at the residence of Luther Clark, corner of Clark and Locust streets, on Wednesday evening.

GOVERNMENT TELEGRAPHES

London, England.—Along with the suggestion by Postmaster Hinchecock that the United States undertake the government ownership of telegraph lines, it is interesting to note what other countries have done under government control.
